

Minnesota Rural Water Association Wins Awards at National Conference

LOUISVILLE, Ky. – Staff from the Minnesota Rural Water Association jumped up and exchanged high-fives as their association was named “Association of the Year” during the 2013 Tribute to Excellence awards ceremony held October 1st as part of the National Rural Water Association (NRWA) H2O-XPO in Louisville, Ky.

(Photo above: Ruth Hubbard, MRWA executive director (center, left) accepting the Awards, with MRWA staff and board that were able to attend the NRWA H2O-XPO conference in Louisville, KY)

MRWA was honored for years of consistent service, including retaining 17 staff members with a combined 225 years of service. Minnesota also won the award for Outstanding Achievement in Communications, Publications and Public Relations, recognized for its monthly newsletter and quarterly magazine. The association also recently started a notification system that can contact thousands through phone lines, e-mails and text messages.

These winners were selected from 49 state associations across the nation. The National Rural Water Association Awards Committee reviews each submission with the names redacted, then scores each item to select a winner.

Minnesota Rural Water Association is headquartered in Elbow Lake, Minnesota and can be accessed on the web at: www.mrwa.com